Streamlining policymaking activities for state agencies

With Esper, state agencies have one centralized location for policy research, drafting, review and publishing. In addition, agencies can leverage Esper as a way to engage their citizens and capture public comments on policies that will directly impact them.

One source of truth for all agency policymaking

Agency staff can leverage Esper to syndicate all policies across key stakeholders. This transparent and collaborative functionality ensures team alignment on key policies and reduces administrative overhead.

Improving citizen engagement with public comments

State agencies are able to improve organization and transparency in the public comment process with Esper. Agencies use Esper to facilitate the collection of public comments and easily record and respond to feedback from a single source of truth.

Empowering state-level agencies across the U.S.
